The Harvest Festival was a joyful occasion. Despite being in our classrooms and offices and homes (in the case of governors) a strong sense of community was felt, thanks in no small part to the singing of some great songs with powerful messages. During the assembly the totals were shared and the children were informed of the difference they will make. 655 children will be helped by the Sanku Healthy Child Project. 200 adult couples will be able to have mosquito nets that can prevent them getting malaria. And 5 people will be able to have medical treatment to prevent them from going blind. And I know that parents, staff and governors are making their own private donations too. THANK YOU ALL.
